Women & Elections: Catching a Wave or Building a Movement?

Friday September 20th 12:00pm - 1:00pm

2018’s “Year of the Woman” brought the largest class of new women in history to the California State Legislature. In just one year California rebounded from a 20-year low in women’s representation, to a tie with it’s all time high. At all levels and around the country, 2018 saw a similar leap in elected leadership that looks like America. And yet in the CA legislature, women still make up only 31%, grossly out of sync with their status as 51% of the population.

How did we get this far, and how can we go further? What can we do to ensure that 31% is not the high water mark but rather the beginning of the end of gender imbalance? Why did women’s representation flatline and even fall after 1992’s “Year of the Woman,” and what can we do to avoid that in 2020 and beyond? How do we go from “Year of the Woman,” to “Women Forever?” Join experts from around the country for a discussion on these questions and the path forward.
